

Degree programmes in English

There has been teaching in English in the Varkaus Campus since 1993. Degree programmes taught entirely in English started in the year 1994. In the autumn 2003 the Degree Programme in International Business, specialisation alternative International Marketing Management.

Study places in degree programmes in English have been increasing. Presently there are five different programmes run on Varkaus Campus. Two of them are International Business programmes, two Engineering programmes and the newest one is Masters in Industrial Management.

Also students studying in the Finnish degree programme can join the courses taught in English. Besides Finnish students also international students from all over the world study in the degree programmes taught in English. The Varkaus Campus has students from for example China, Vietnam, Pakistan, Morocco, Russia, Latvia, Germany, Bangladesh, Nigeria and Ghana.

In addition there are international exchange students participating in the courses. The exchange students study here for one semester or a whole academic year. The school has exchange students from for example China, Czech Republic, Poland, Lithuania and Germany.

A new International Business Programme will be started in autumn 2006 as part of Adult Education. The specialisation in the new programme is International Business Management and Project Leadership.
